

POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP

Drive Change. Advance Health Equity.
Collaborate with Communities.

ABOUT THE PROGRAM

Two-year health equity focused fellowship where research meets action. Receive training and collaborate with academics and community leaders to advance food justice solutions in diverse communities as part of the San Diego County CommUNITY Incubator Network (KIN). Apply by 3/15/2026 for consideration.

WHY APPLY?

Make an impact: Conduct action-oriented research that matters now.

Learn from the best: Training and mentorship from committed researchers and community leaders.

Hands-on experience: Work directly with community-based organizations on critical research questions they identified.

Lead change: Build the skills to drive transformative research and advocacy.

WHO SHOULD APPLY?

Recent doctoral graduates in public health, food systems, or related fields. We encourage applications from individuals with diverse backgrounds, especially those with lived expertise and a commitment to health equity and community-driven research.

Learn More

Contact: Amy Atun, MPH, Coordinator, aatun@health.ucsd.edu

Funded by American Heart Association Health Equity Research Network and Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.